Why Learn a Foreign Language?

• Though he sees some of the objections to cluttering one's mind with foreign languages, Professor Godfrey (Times, Dec. 2) apparently does not see all. Language is an instrument for the expression of thought. If thought is impeded by two or three words all applying to the same idea, it is in danger of confusion or looseness of expression. One word is enough. I wonder whether Mr. Godfrey ever heard that old rhyme of William Hazlitt's:

For he that is but able to express
No sense at all in several languages,
Will pass for learned than he that's known
To speak the plainest wisdom in his own.

—C. L., Winnipeg.

Stu's from Saskatchewan

• First of all, let me compliment you on the wonderful job you are doing with the "Times." It is a mighty fine little book—and I know of many who would not be without it. I am speaking now as a TV fan as well as a performer.

I would like to thank you for the numerous "plugs" you have given me—they are really appreciated, believe me. So, please do not take offence if I correct something you wrote about me in the latest edition. It stated that I was a "native Winnipegger." This is not so. Just so all my friends and relatives in Saskatchewan will not think that I have forsaken them—I would like very much to have this error corrected.

I was born and reared in Regina—then spent eight years in Alberta—three in Edmonton and five in Calgary. My wife and I and our two boys moved to Winnipeg in the summer of 1955.

Thanks again for the very informative magazine that is appreciated by performers and viewers alike. Keep up the good work.—Stu Davis, Winnipeg.

AROUND CBC . . .

by The Editor

YOU ARE INVITED to read inside information of what the CBC is planning for you . . . what your favourite radio and TV personalities are doing . . . and what is going on behind the scenes here at the busy Prairie Regional Headquarters of the CBC. Along with other odds and ends, it will all be here for you, in this column each week.

CHRISTMAS IS A-COMIN' and producers here have been hustling for weeks, working up special programs to mark the most joyous season of the Christian year.

WHILE MOST OF US are addressing our Christmas cards, several top public officials are getting ready to deliver a vocal Christmas greeting to everyone in Canada, on the Northern Messenger program Christmas night. Although the program usually is carried only on certain selected stations, beaming personal messages into the vast northland, this special program will be heard on the coast-to-coast radio network, and will be expanded to an hour in length. Top cabinet ministers, R.C.M.P., CBC and church officials will speak, and various radio stations in the north, at Churchill, Yellowknife, Fort Smith and other such remote locations, will report on activities in their communities.

SPECIAL MUSIC has become a tradition on radio and television during the Christmas season. The schedule will continue throughout Christmas week, climaxing on Christmas Day with so many programs that we cannot make mention of more than a few in this column. For serious music listeners, the Keetbaas Quintet, a woodwind ensemble, will return for a 15-minute interlude on radio following the special Armed Services Variety Show. And in a lighter, yet nostalgic, vein, a half-hour television show "Red River Christmas" featuring popular songstress Florence Faiers will originate from Winnipeg, produced by Jack Phillips. Eric Wild and his orchestra will provide accompaniment, and the James Duncan chorus will lend their talents to the show, to feature songs from the Gay 'Nineties. Settings and costumes will simulate a country farmhouse at the turn of the century.

KEEPING CHRIST in Christmas, Religious Period will present a special Christmas afternoon program with the Very Reverend W. Gordon Maclean of First Presbyterian Church, Winnipeg and choir directed by organist Stanley Osborne.

MAXINE WARE has returned to Winnipeg and the Prairie Region network of the CBC, after a two-year stint in the Toronto entertainment world. Already she has been heard on Rhythm and Romance, CBC radio. Other appearances are scheduled for her in such programs as a New Year's Eve special to be produced here.

On Our Cover

JULIUS CAESAR

As Mark Antony (William Shatner) intones the words . . .

"You all know this mantle . . .

"Through it the well-loved Brutus stabbed

"And as he plucked his cursed steel away

"Mark how the blood of Caesar followed it."

. . . Brutus (Fritz Weaver) realizes the enormity of his deed. The immortal scene is part of the CBC production of Julius Caesar, one of the best-loved of Shakespeare's tragedies, to be presented Monday, December 19, on Festival '61.

On G.M. Presents

Constance Takes a Boat Trip

Glamorous U.S. movie star Constance Cummings takes time out from her busy international career to take a leisurely cruise on a freighter—on "Ten Grapefruit to Lisbon," featured Sunday on "G.M. Presents"

"ALL MY LIFE I've been in too big a hurry to go anywhere by boat, but I've always wanted to take a freighter trip," actress Constance Cummings tells us. Sunday night she will — vicariously — when she plays a gay and mysterious passenger on a freighter bound for Lisbon.

The glamorous U.S. stage, film and TV star appears on General Motors Presents in a CBC-TV drama by Frank Gilroy called "Ten Grapefruit to Lisbon." All the action takes place on a boat where Miss Cummings, as Irene Flack, has an unpredictable effect on her fellow passengers. Co-starring with her will be John Vernon and Larry Mann.

When she flew in to Toronto from her home in England at the end of November to start rehearsing for the show under Ron Weyman's direction, we had a brief chat in the studio canteen, while she hurried through ham-on-a-bun and an Eskimo pie.

She was greatly surprised at the size of Toronto. Montreal was the only other Canadian city she had ever visited — to appear in a CBC-TV play with Franchot Tone. She was eager to know something of the history of the two cities, and how their personalities compared.

Seattle, she told us, was her first home, but she has spent a good bit of time in New York intermittently since she first arrived there at 16 and found a job as a chorus girl. She got her "big break" in typical showbusiness style, while understudying the leading lady in a George Kaufman play.

On one occasion the star took ill and Miss Cummings replaced her. She so impressed a Hollywood scout that he contracted her for a Sam Goldwyn picture. Two weeks later her rosy future looked grim when she was replaced by Loretta Young. But Columbia Pictures signed her up some time after, for the ingenue lead in a Walter Huston picture. That was the first of many films.

She was offered several stage roles on Broadway and in England on the strength of them. As soon as she could be released from her contract she headed overseas and scored a success in a Vincent Lawrence play called Sour Grapes. She made her Broadway debut in Samson Raphaelson's Accent on Youth, and after that she was busy on both sides of the Atlantic in such plays as Madame Bovary, "Goodbye Mr. Chips," "The Petrified Forest," "The Shrike," "Lysistrata," and "Romeo and Juliet."

She has given Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf" at London's Albert Hall, and was the first to play the long recitative part of Joan in the Claudel-Honneger oratorio, "St. Joan at the Stake."

Between her stage engagements she managed to sandwich in several successful films, including "Blythe Spirit," "John and Julia," "Into the Blue," "The Intimate Strangers," and "The Battle of the Sexes," with Peter Sellers.

LATE NOTES AND CORRECTIONS

WEEK OF DECEMBER 11-17

Because each issue of the CBC Times must be mailed so far in advance of the program week covered in it, some changes in scheduling and in program content are inevitable. These are noted below.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 11

TELEVISION

CBWT—Twentieth Century

CBWT viewers will not see "Revolt in Hungary" previously scheduled for this date. They will view the program subtitled "Submarine" instead. With a dramatic commentary by Walter Cronkite, this half hour will trace the history of the submarine from its earliest stages, through its development in two world wars, to a special preview of the U.S.S. Skipjack. This is the revolutionary new experimental submarine that could be described as "looking like a whale, handling like an air-liner and travelling like a fish-in-flight."

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 13

Today, Blair Fraser, the editor of Maclean's Magazine, joins panelists Gordon Sinclair, Pierre Burton and June Callwood (replacing Toby Robins this evening) in attempting to identify news headlines.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 14

CBWT—Countrytime

Instead of the program outlined in last week's issue, the story of sugar beets, from planting to factory, will be told. The cameras will visit the Manitoba Sugar Company factory in Fort Garry, and show the steps in processing the crop.

Perry Como

Two eras of the entertainment world meet when Perry has as guests Betty Grable and Brenda Lee. Highlighting the show will be Brook Benton.

When we asked how she liked working with Sellers she said "it was tremendous fun. He's a terrible giggler, but takes infinite pains with rehearsal and study to get a thing just right, so it's marvellous to act with him."

"My latest stage appearance," she tells us, "was in my husband's play, "Rape of the Belt." I played it for over a year in London and then we took it to New York, but it wasn't a success there.

"The future? Well, I'll likely be doing a play in England this winter. We'll start rehearsing the first of February, take it on tour for three weeks, and open in London in April. I can't say what it is, because plans aren't finalized."

That's the public Miss Cummings. What about the private one? Well, out of the spotlight she has the same alert, emphatic manner she has on-stage. She looks as if someone had just given her some good news and she was dying to tell about it. She's married to writer Benn W. Levy, they have two children, Jemima, almost 10, and Jonathan, 11.

"We live in London, and we're all terribly excited about the farm we've bought in Oxfordshire. We've been looking for one for years. It's a proper working farm, too, so we're all reading up madly about cows and chickens. Of course we have a bailiff running it, because we know absolutely nothing about farming."

Miss Cummings swallowed the last of her Eskimo pie and hurried back to the freighter tied up in Studio 30.

Duel in the Air

I think the duel to end all duels was fought on May 3, 1808, in France between M. Le Pique and M. de Grandprée, who fought it out in the air in balloons—both of them armed with blunderbusses. M. de Grandprée obviously had the "master mind" for he did not aim at his opponent but blew an enormous hole in his rival's balloon, which sent M. Le Pique and his second crashing earthward and into another world where one is sure duelling has never existed. — Jocelyn Bradford, speaking about famous duels.

Dancers perform to Masquerade, character ballet by Khachaturian, on "Patterns in Music," a special show to be seen Friday, December 16, on CBC-TV. Also on the show will be Barbara Strathdee, soprano; Betty-Jean Hagen, violinist; Brian Sullivan, tenor; and Walter Susskind, conductor.

Rev. Dr. Bennett on Encounter

Should Christians Speak Out?

Rev. Dr. John C. Bennett, New York theologian, has some definite views on politics and religion. He will air them Sunday

ON ENCOUNTER

THE REV. DR. JOHN C. BENNETT, Dean of the Faculty at New York's Union Theological Seminary, believes that, though separation of church and state is itself good, this certainly does not mean that ministers, theologians and Christian laymen should not speak out on social and political issues when ethical values and Christian beliefs are involved.

In a Saturday Review article, Dr. Bennett discussed a revival in religious questions in the U.S. which, he feels, has been mainly on the personal and subjective level "with more depth than form." This revival "may lead to a private rejection of many cultural values but it has not led to much public, prophetic criticism."

"The prophetic religious challenge to the complacencies of a culture has never been emphasized by the majority at any time," Dr. Bennett wrote. "The Biblical prophets themselves always moved against the religious stream of their own day. But we can hope that the churches may raise up within themselves more individuals and groups which keep asking the hard questions about their culture and which point to new possibilities of honesty and justice within the community. Also, it is not too much to hope that far beyond these minorities there will be a disturbed public conscience."

Sunday, CBC-TV's Encounter presents Dr. Bennett in conversation with Nathan Cohen. Dr. Bennett will state some of his forthright views in a conversation ranging over Christianity and the a three-part series about family life, comes from Vancouver and discusses the place of elderly people in the family group. Gordon Hawkins, the program's host, and Bill Hamilton, a social worker from Victoria, will discuss the problems of old people with old people themselves. (Two conclusions they've arrived at: the retired older man is less resourceful than the retired older woman; older people today usually have material and financial advantages over older people of a generation ago.)

The Nature of Things

Today—"Science Fiction." Using the plots of Toronto writer Rod Coneybeare, Boston scientist and science fiction writer Isaac Azimov, draws conclusions about science fiction. Some of these conclusions attempt to explain what it is, why it is written, and how it confuses the public about science and its motives. Dr. Azimov a lecturer in biochemistry at the Harvard Medical College in Boston, is one of America's leading science and science-fiction writers. His science fiction works include "Pebble in the Sky," "Nine Tomorrows," and "Only a Trillion."

Twentieth Century

"The Berliners: Life In A Gilded Cage," a special report on West Berlin. Festival '61

Presents "Julius Caesar," by Shakespeare. Starring Fritz Weaver, Douglas Rain, Bruno Gerussi, Gillie Fenwick, Frances Hyland and Kate Reid, with special guest star William Shatner, and a cast of fifty. Rome is no longer a republic. Julius Caesar has so caught the imagination of the people with his triumphs in war that, as the play opens, they are about to offer him a crown. The noble Brutus is concerned about the consequences for Rome should "this dictator" be crowned. He is easily persuaded by Cassius to head a conspiracy of noble citizens. After a night of turbulence and supernatural omens, they assassinate Caesar in the Senate. Brutus permits Caesar's best friend, Mark Antony, to speak at his funeral—and the young man so fires the populace that they turn against the conspirators and drive them from Rome. Brutus and Cassius, beset by problems, prepare to meet an opposing army under the leadership of Antony and Caesar's heir, Octavius Caesar. The two armies meet in battle at Philippi.

On The Nature of Things

Science — Mostly Fiction

IF YOU WANT to justify (or knock down) science fiction, you can do it at two levels: you can criticize it as literature; or you can criticize it as science.

Isaac Azimov is a godsend to those who want to justify science fiction on both grounds. He is an American scientist, distinguished in the field of biochemistry, whose books of science fiction stories have often been praised by literary critics.

This week, The Nature of Things, CBC television's weekly science series on Sundays, presents an off-beat program on Science Fiction. Dr. Azimov will be featured on the show as critic, discussing the merits and faults of a number of short science fiction sketches written by satirist, Rod Coneybeare.

Program organizer David Walker summarizes the theme like this: "Space Captain Rex Race with his dauntless band of astronauts forges through the firmament towards a planet populated entirely by beautiful women. The morale problem mounts. The scientific difficulties which Captain Rex faces are terrifying.

"Captain Race and a collection of robots, time machines, BEM's (Bug Eyed Monsters) and mutants are the common fare of science fiction," says Walker. "Where the science leaves off and the fiction begins is the theme of this program."

Some of Coneybeare's sketches are very funny, some very grim. And even though the program often treats the subject with humour, "Dr. Azimov will make a number of very serious points," said Walker.

Dr. Azimov was born in the small Russian town of Petrovichi in 1920 and was brought by his parents to the United States when he was three years old.

Current Biography says of him: "It was his father, in fact, who gave him a copy of Science Wonder Stories," thinking such reading

Festival '61 Presents

JULIUS CAESAR

VIEWERS who had their appetites whetted by the production last month of Macbeth, are in for another rich meal of Shakespeare. Monday, December 19, Festival '61 will present Julius Caesar, one of the best-loved of the Bard's great classics.

Paul Almond directs a star-studded cast in the CBC television production. Douglas Rain plays Cassius and Fritz Weaver is Brutus. William Shatner takes the demanding role of the great orator, Mark Antony, while Gillie Fenwick is Julius Caesar, Bruno Gerussi is Casca, Frances Hyland is Calpurnia and Ivor Barry is Flavius. The cast includes 50 actors.

A problem faced by makeup artists was that of providing a custom-built Roman nose for Douglas Rain (Cassius) Anneke Franck, one of the make-up team working on the two-hour show for Festival '61, took a "positive" cast of Rain's own nose to the NBC make-up director, Robert Abradovitch.

Materials for the nose (sponge latex—a special composition from Hollywood) and equipment for the complicated baking process are unavailable in Toronto. Miss Franck spent two days in New York working with Obradovitch. They made three nose pieces, to fit

On Close-Up

Peter Rabbit's "Father"

Thornton W. Burgess, who appears on Close-Up Tuesday, started with a few stories written for the amusement of his son, and in 50 years has published 70 books and 15,000 newspaper stories

IT IS 50 YEARS since Thornton W. Burgess wrote Old Mother West Wind. Since then he has had published 70 titles, of which 64 are still in print. About 7,000,000 copies of these books have been sold.

Furthermore, Mr. Burgess has written some 15,000 stories published in dozens of newspapers across North America. Many of the young readers (and some of their parents) can remember, word for word, their favourite stories about Peter Rabbit, Hooty the Owl, Jimmy the Skunk, and all the others; about the Green Meadow, the Smiling Pool and the Laughing Brook.

Despite all this, Mr. Burgess himself cannot remember any of these stories, not even the titles. And if you ask him to repeat one of the 12,000-or-so couplets he has written (each with a little moral) he cannot do it, not even the one he wrote yesterday.

The reason goes back to that first children's book, Old Mother (Please turn to page 23)

On First Person

Christmas Crisis

CHRISTMAS EVE, 1898, in a household in Toronto is the setting of the half-hour drama on CBC-TV's First Person, Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m.

Written by Roy Shields and produced by Basil Coleman, "A Matter of Some Importance" begins as the family prepares for the arrival of the eldest son, Willie, who is coming home from Harvard for Christmas. But when he turns up, a domestic crisis threatens the "special family Christmas" mother has planned. She and Willie have a showdown.

Mother talks of his duty to the family and his promising future. He has other things on his mind.

Kate Reid plays Mother, with Robin Gammell as Willie.

Gammell will also be seen Monday night at 9:30 p.m. as Octavius Caesar in the Festival '61 production of Julius Caesar on CBC-TV. He started his professional career in summer stock in Sarnia, Ontario, while still a high school student. He was an apprentice at Stratford in 1955.

The next year he won a Tyrone Guthrie scholarship and accompanied the Stratford company to the Edinburgh Festival. Afterwards he stayed in Britain to study at the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art. He worked in British TV, made a film in Switzerland and played juvenile leads with the Sheffield Repertory Company. Last summer he returned to Canada to play in Stratford productions of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Fancy Free

With host Alan Millar, vocalists Alan Blye, Ruth Walker, and the vocal group, The Billy Van Four. This will be a Christmas program and will feature the Canadettes precision dance team as guests. The dancers will do a skating routine. Also featured on the program will be film of the outdoor Christmas lights in Toronto. Christmas carols will be sung behind this film sequence. Other music on the program: Christmas Waltz (Allan Blye), The Christmas Song (The Billy Van Four), Put On A Happy Face (Ruth Walker), and Santa Claus is Coming To Town (Ruth Walker).

Gordon Hawkins, Citizens' Forum Host

"Intellectual Traffic Cop"

GORDON HAWKINS, host for Citizens' Forum, believes the role of host on a discussion program of this nature must be that of an "intellectual traffic cop."

"The host," he says, "has an obligation to see that the entire subject is covered, and must keep the conversation moving."

Citizens' Forum is telecast each Sunday at 4:30 p.m. EST, and the audio portion is repeated on the Trans-Canada radio network, Thursdays at 8:30 p.m. EST.

Hawkins believes that an important factor in covering the entire subject is to talk it out with the guests before air time. This way he knows how much they have to say, and how fast he has to lead them.

There are two types of guests on Citizens' Forum — the expert who knows the subject thoroughly, and the articulate non-expert who is closely associated with it. For instance, guests on a recent three-part series on defence included Gen. Charles Foulkes, former chairman of the chiefs of staff; J. B. Priestley, member of the British Committee for Nuclear Disarmament; two university professors; a columnist, and a social worker.

"Each type of guest is necessary," says Hawkins, "the expert with his sound knowledge, and the non-expert with whom the audience can associate themselves."

Hawkins was born in London 38 years ago, and has spent most of his adult life travelling throughout the world. "I'm a born traveller," he says, "and love every minute of it."

As an interrogator with the Royal Navy during the Second World War, he served in Australia, Ceylon, India, Burma and Siam, interrogating Japanese prisoners of war and evaluating captured Japanese documents.

For the past eight years most of his travelling has been done in Canada, with an average of about six trips a year, back and forth across the country. After joining the staff of the University of Alberta in 1952, he lectured to Canadian servicemen for the current affairs branch of the department of national defence. His assignments took him to Whitehorse, the Hudson Bay area and Labrador, as well as to major centres from coast to coast.

This close acquaintance with Canada was intensified while he was with the Canadian Association for Adult Education, during which time he became host of Citizens' Forum.

This year Hawkins was appointed executive director of the Duke of Edinburgh's Second Commonwealth Study Conference, which meets in Canada in 1962 to discuss the changing industrial environment in the Commonwealth. He recently returned from a two-month tour of Africa where he met employer and labour organizations which will select delegates to the conference.

over Rain's face from his eyebrows to the tip of his nose.

The fake noses are fragile and Rain wore one for a photo session, one for dress rehearsal and one for the video-taping.

William Shatner, Canadian actor now living in Hollywood, is billed as special guest star. On Broadway and in U.S. television, Shatner has worked with some of the biggest stars, including Maureen O'Hara, Zachary Scott, France Nuyen, Michael Rennie, Lee J. Cobb, Ralph Bellamy and Yul Brynner.

William De Marois, leading Montreal actor, plays the role of Caesar's servant. De Marois acted with director Almond in Montreal during the early 1950's. Recently De Marois appeared in the General Motors Presents drama, "Death is a Spanish Dancer."

Bill Potton will play the boy, Lucius, in the production. Bill, now 16, is an actor and former boy soprano who hopes to develop into a tenor. He played the lead in "The Turn of the Screw" a few years ago, and last spring played Jan Rubes as a boy on the CBC-TV special, An Hour with Juliette.

Jonathan White, who plays the part of Antony's officer, is also staging the fight scenes. An experienced fencer, White did a similar job for David Green's productions of "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" for CBC-TV some five years ago. He has also fenced in competition.

matter was educational." And one of his friends is quoted as saying that, after Isaac read the book, "he alas was not long for this world. At the age of nine, he became a science fiction fan."

But the young Azimov not only read and wrote about science fiction, he also became a scientist, and took his Ph.D. in chemistry. He is now a researcher in the field of cancer. In collaboration with two colleagues he has written a medical text book, "Biochemistry and Human Metabolism," his latest book "The Intelligent Man's Guide to Science," has just been published by the University of Toronto Press. And in a lighter vein, Dr. Azimov has written science fiction works like "Pebble in the Sky," "Nine Tomorrows," "Only a Trillion" and "The End of Eternity."

Rod Coneybeare, like Dr. Azimov, has been out of this world for a long time now too. His CBC Trans-Canada radio program of a few years back, Out of This World, featured Rod and his many voices in a number of roles in science fiction stories.

"The only rules of the show are that it should have a twist, or unexpected ending," he said at that time, "and it must be fantastic. I fasten on anything and put it in the realm of the fantastic."

The rule holds good on this weeks Nature of Things when Rod's skits are sometimes funny, sometimes gruesome, but always fantastic. Dr. Azimov has another role on this week's The Nature of Things—he wrote the songs that introduce Coneybeare's sketches. Perhaps Dr. Azimov is expounding the first lore of space-travel when he writes:

"Did you ever hear tell of the spaceships from earth?
"It is there you will find what bravery's worth.
"Through long lonely distances, icy and black,
"With just dead world's a-waiting, and not turning back."

SHOULD CHRISTIANS SPEAK OUT?

state, communism, and Christian values in economic life.

Dr. Bennett's views on the question of the religion of Senator Kennedy, just prior to the U.S. presidential election, received considerable publicity. Newsweek quotes an article written by Bennett on Christianity and Crises in which the author concedes that electors are entitled to weigh all the beliefs and actions of a presidential candidate. But Dr. Bennett then makes three points:

First, if the American people should make it clear that a Catholic could never be elected president the implication that full participation in American political life is denied to 39.5 million Catholics "would wound our common life and damage our institutions more grievously than it would be possible for a Catholic president to do even if he chose to."

Secondly, Catholic laymen in America have long supported the American tradition of religious liberty and oppose any privileged position for the Catholic Church.

And thirdly, "many more spe-issues are handled by Catholic governors and mayors without danger to the Republic than ever comes before the President."

On Communism, Dr. Bennett told the eighth assembly of the International Congregational Council, "The churches should be sophisticated about communism. . . . They should not take so rigid an attitude that they cannot see that second generation communists in Russia may become concerned chiefly about building their own country, that they may become less fanatical believers in their ideology, and less of a threat to the freedom of their neighbours."

On economics, Dr. Bennett wrote in Saturday Review: "In the 1930's, there was much prophetic speaking and acting in the churches about economic justice, and this had some effect in preparing the American people to accept the changes that events forced upon them. Today the economic issues are much less clear. Churchmen could readily be champions of labour in the steel strike of 1919 when the 12-hour day was involved, but it has been difficult for them to know what to say about the steel strike of 1959. However there are many emerging issues in the economic sphere to which churches will be called to address themselves. Some issues are less obvious points of justice; they are rather issues that affect the quality of life of the more privileged, their feeling for honesty and truth, their freedom from domination by economic organizations of their own making."

Dr. Bennett, who was born in Kingston, Ont., of American parents, has written, among other books, "Christians and the State."

MATINEE HIGHLIGHTS

At The Circus. According to Beppo, the famous clown at the Olympia Circus in London, the circus clown is really "the doctor in a big madhouse." Beppo is one of the circus folk who talked to Kati Vita, Montreal freelance broadcaster, when she took her tape recorder behind the scenes at the Olympia Circus. (Repeated from Trans-Canada Matinee—23/11/60).

A Shepherd and his Dog. Canadian freelance broadcaster Marjory Whitelaw talked with a shepherd just outside Newtonmore, a small village in Invernessshire, Scotland, which is beginning to seem like her second home. Marjory Whitelaw found that the shepherd had an unexpectedly down-to-earth approach toward his dog. (Repeated from Trans-Canada Matinee—25/11/60).

On Being a Landlord. There was a time when Joan Seager thought that anyone could be a landlord, but now she has discovered by long and painful practice that this simply isn't the case. Mrs. Seager is a freelance writer and broadcaster, who lives near Toronto with her husband and four children. (Repeated from Trans-Canada Matinee—2/11/60).

"If it blew out the window I couldn't rewrite it. I'd write a new story, it would be much easier, and I can tell when I'm in danger of repeating. I don't know why, but I always know. I was fearful that if I remembered stories, then

I would unconsciously plagiarize from myself, and I know I would."

Mr. Burgess describes this aptitude of forgetting in a Close-Up interview to be seen Tuesday. Bill Walker, well known CBC-TV personality, interviewed Mr. Burgess at his home in Hampden, Mass., recently.

A recent story in Life magazine says, "His (Burgess's) mother was widowed when he was nine months old and he endured, as a matter of course, an existence which modern children might well consider one of demeaning hardship.

The Burgesses were taken in by an uncle who was a clerk. . . . His mother earned a dribble of money by making candy, and Burgess, dressed in hand-me-downs, worked at odd jobs almost from the time he could walk. He was virtually self-supporting at 12. In actuality, however, his life was little different from those of other children on the Cape (that is, Cape Cod), and he remembers it today with vast nostalgia."

In the Close-Up interview, Mr. Burgess denies that his childhood was hard. "No, no, I wouldn't say (Please turn to page 31)

Cooking. A Frenchman, Lucienne Barraud, will be our second cook in this series. M. Barraud was born in Burgundy; he came to Montreal in 1930 and is now executive chef steward at the Sheraton Mount Royal Hotel. He was the chef in charge of dinner for the Queen during her visit to Montreal in 1959. M. Barraud is Chevalier of the Club Gastronomique, Prosper Montagne of Paris, and he founded a similar club in Montreal. He has been honored in Paris, New York and London for his cuisine. The main recipe he will give Matinee listeners today is a dessert unique to Burgundy and called "Clafoutis des Cerises."

At The Post Office. Hostess Betty Tomlinson visits the Post Office. When asked to "Mail early for Christmas," many people just shrug it off and don't really believe that it's necessary, or appreciate why it's necessary. Today Betty visits the Post Office to see for herself and report to Matinee listeners on the hustle and bustle. She will talk to sorters, mailmen and part-time Christmas helpers such as University students; she will find out what happens to wrongly addressed cards and badly packaged parcels, the efforts made to trace the sender or addressee, and the part being played by automation.

Drama At Its Best . . .

Next Thursday at 9:30 p.m. in the Thursday Evening Spectaculars series CBWFT presents a character comedy by Molière: "Le Misanthrope" (The Misanthropist). It will feature Jacques Dumesnil, with Gisèle Fauret, Jacques Charron and François Valère.

It was recorded last year in Paris by Télé-Luxembourg.

"Le Théâtre du Vieux-Colombier" of Paris, one of the world's leading theatrical groups, has in some sort revolutionized Molière's conception of "Le Misanthrope" by giving it a completely modern, "everyday" setting. Costumes are of street-wear type, decors of 1960 Paris. CBWFT viewers will be pleased to note that the effect is a stunning one, and that this courageous experiment was a rewarding one. The play, first staged last year in this new decor, was a personal success for the troupe, particularly for Jacques Dumesnil in his lead role of Alceste, the Misanthropist.

The troupe then toured Eastern Canada, and finally staged the play for Télé-Luxembourg who filmed it. It is this filmed version that we will see on Channel 6 next Thursday.

"Le Misanthrope" dates back to 1666—it was first staged in June of that year in Paris, at the Royal Palace Theatre, and Molière himself played the lead role. Critics at that time hailed the play as Molière's masterpiece — a feeling which hasn't changed since — but the play was not a financial success. The public as a whole felt it was too frank, and was further upset by this new approach to comedy . . . which did not permit them to know if they should laugh or cry!

Whatever the critic's praise . . . or blame for the play, "Le Misanthrope" is certainly Molière's most bitter and most dense comedy. It is, in fact, a cruel but poignant tableau of the morals of a particular society in a particular era . . . perhaps all societies in every era!

'Deed I Do _____ Hirsch-Rose
Too Marvelous for Words _____ Mercedes-Wahing
Jingle Bells _____

Professor Clare Pentland, University of Manitoba economist explains why, in his opinion, the rapid depletion of the fund is to be expected, and gives his estimate of the reasons for this depletion.

My Christmas Dolls. Laura Jamieson had only three dolls during her childhood in the 1880's but they were, she says, quite enough. Dolls were for the winter, when the snow and cold weather kept a pre-school child in the house: a child on a farm really didn't need a doll much in the summer when she was far too busy exploring out-of-doors. Mrs. Jamieson is a former juvenile court judge and was a mem-

Kathy. Just before Christmas, two years ago, the telephone rang and a voice on the other end said: "I hope I won't upset your plans for Christmas too much, Mrs. Grant, we have a baby for you." The call was from the Children's Air Society, and Helene Grant tells how nine-month-old Kathy joined the household. "The Family." Today - "Ageing" (part one). This first program, in a three part series about family life, comes from Vancouver and discusses the place of elderly people in the family group. Gordon Hawkins, the program's host, and Bill Hamilton, a social worker from Victoria, will discuss the problems of old people with old people themselves. (Two conclusions they've arrived at: the retired older man is less resourceful than the retired older woman; older people today usually have material and financial advantages over older people of a generation ago.)

W-8:30 pm K-8:30 pm X-8:30 pm

PETER RABBIT'S
"FATHER"

my childhood was a hard one. I would say it was a very happy one because we always had something to do. We had to meet certain obligations—just because I had to work. I would say that was an advantage."

On leaving school he worked as a clerk in a Boston shoe store for $7.00 a week. After two years he went to a small publishing house in Springfield, Mass., as an office boy—at $5.00 a week.

During his clerical days he also wrote some commercial jingles. Life quotes one, a paraphrase of Longfellow, advertising the Miles Standish Spring Water Company: "Kneeling there beside the water, "Long he quaffs the laughing rill, "Feels with each refreshing swallow, "Strange new life within him thrill."

General reporting, including a column of humour which the publishing company later put out as a book, followed. But Mr. Burgess discovered the field that brought him fame quite by accident; he wrote some stories for his young son, and on Close-Up he tells how these finally got published.

Some people, of course, don't like Mr. Burgess's stories. There is a report that some librarians refuse to carry his books on their shelves because they have animals speaking—and children should not be taught something that's not true.

And hunters are not particularly fond of his stories either. Mr. Burgess tells how one man came up to him after he had addressed a public meeting and said, "I like to hunt. But the other day I came home with a rabbit I shot and my five-year-old daughter looked me up and down and said, 'Why Daddy, you've killed Peter Rabbit.' Now I can't shoot any more because I can't afford to have my little daughter look at me like that."

Allan King has directed this interview for Close-Up.

As in previous years, he will introduce his Waits to Matinee. Waits are itinerant musicians who parade the streets at night at Christmastime. In the 14th and 15th centuries they were watchmen who sounded horns or even played a tune to mark the hours. Later, the ordinary street watchmen serenaded householders at Christmas, calling around on Boxing Day to receive a gratuity. When, in 1829, their place as guardians of the city's safety was taken by police, private individuals kept up the practice. And the final reading from Osbert Sitwell's "Fee Fi Fo Fum," adapted for radio and read by Eric Christmas.

Close-Up's Bob Crone

GLOBE-TROTTING CAMERAMAN

SIR BERNARD and Lady Docker invited him to spend a day aboard their yacht after they were “banished” from Monaco.

A Polish official in Warsaw left him cooling his heels while the plane he wanted to board took off—and crashed—killing nine persons. King Hussein granted him an interview in Amman, Jordan, a year before the Middle East crisis.

In South Africa, two years ago, he was shadowed by the police.

All this, and more, has happened to 28-year-old movie cameraman Bob Crone in his 'round-the-world travels for such CBC-TV programs as Close-Up, Background and CBC Newsmagazine, all in the course of five years.

Crone, the son of a clergyman, caught the camera bug during his high-school days in Peterborough, Ont., when he produced his own sound movie of one of the school's cadet inspections.

“I don't really know how I got into this business, and now I don't know how to get out of it,” he says.

A list of the places he has visited in the path of duty reads like the index of a world atlas: Europe, Scandinavia, Russia, Indo-China, Laos, Cambodia, Viet-Nam, Iran, Iraq, Turkey, Lebanon, Jordan, Israel, India, North and South Africa, the Canadian Arctic.

Crone went to Africa twice last year and is vitally interested in the current South African crisis. “The situation was explosive, even then,” he says.

A recent assignment took Crone to Memphis, Tenn., to cover the “sitting in” strike of coloured people at lunch counters.

“I like this kind of assignment,” he declares. “I guess most of us are partial to the underdog.” Crone met Negro ministers and missionaries when they visited his home during his boyhood years and, when his father's calling took him to the southern United States, Bob attended school there for a year.

Although Crone is away from his Toronto home for several months of the year, he often takes “home” with him. His wife, Violet, herself a professional photographer, accompanies her husband occasionally. Their six-year-old son David remains behind in the care of his grandparents.

Of his many assignments for television, Bob says one of the most depressing was a visit to a he filmed Elaine Grand's interview with Lord Bertrand Russell for Close-Up last season.

“Deep-thinking people somehow have a great deal of time for you,” he says. “The bigger they are, the easier to work with.”

Most of Crone's camera subjects are hardly aware they are being photographed. He keeps his movie equipment to an easily-handled minimum, and dispenses with the familiar “clap-stick” that signals the beginning of a scene. He has replaced the stick with his own device—a gadget allowing him to “dial” the scene number much as he would a telephone number.

In the midst of a much-travelled career, Crone has come to one major conclusion:

“Canada is the most blessed country in the world, bar none,” he says. This may be why he's now thinking “of staying home more.” At least until his next assignment to faraway places.

“I never know where I'm going next,” says Crone. “That's what keeps it exciting.”

Most of us “elder citizens” would wish to be independent: and in spite of rather loose talk about “children not taking their old parents to live with them,” my belief is that the majority of old parents don't want to live with their children anyway—if they can have a reasonable alternative, which they should have. See them, yes; and particularly the grandchildren, who in my opinion are more likely to treat grandparents with real respect and affection if they are not continually with them. — Mrs. Dora Taylor, speaking in a BBC program. Independence for the Old

Son Appears in Telecast from Japan

• If I haven't written sooner, it is that I was waiting impatiently for the first program "La Bonne Nouvelle" which we have seen last Sunday.

I have greatly appreciated the information you have taken so many pains to find.

We were all watching attentively, Sunday, and I can't describe the immense joy we felt when our son, Father Jacques (a missionary in Japan) appeared although only briefly, in a flash of the next program on Formosa. We won't miss it!

The CBC was well-inspired in its initiative to bring us these first-hand reports on our Missionaries' work in the various regions of the world.

When we see our son on the screen again, be sure that the CBC will have given us immense pleasure and joy.

Many thanks to Mr. Remillard and your other superiors, in particular Mr. Finlay, and be sure to tell them of our deep appreciation.—J. Léon Bruyère, St. Boniface, Man.

Macbeth Praised

• This letter is to add to the stack of such you must have already received expressing appreciation for your recent presentation of "Macbeth." It was wonderful. — P. D. C., Winnipeg.

• The grade eleven students of Scott Collegiate, Regina, sincerely appreciated your broadcast of "Macbeth" on Wednesday, Nov. 16. We thought it was an excellent performance and the characters were very well portrayed. I am sure that this production will help us greatly in our study of "Macbeth." Thank you very much.—Miss C. B., Regina.

• What a thrilling treat! "Macbeth," so wonderfully portrayed, and then last night "Peking Opera," it was a delight for every minute of the spectacular of drama, mime, dance, etc. I don't know when I was so moved by the exquisite interpretations, it was indeed an exotic treat. Keep up the good work. — Mrs. J. J. B., Winnipeg.

• I would like to extend my thanks to you for the wonderful presentation of William Shakespeare's play, "Macbeth." It was the most spectacular production I have ever seen. I am only a grade eleven student but I am able to realize what a production this is. The actors in my opinion were superb, from the role of Macbeth right down the line. I wish you would continue in your work of producing plays like these, so the people of Canada will create a better understanding of the finer works of literature.—M. M., Regina, Sask.

Another treat for Shakespearean fans—"Julius Caesar," will be telecast on Festival '61, Monday, December 19th, on the CBC-TV network.
